Antarctica's Ross Sea Region

Spend time on your verandah and out on deck as you enter the Ross Sea, one of the most remote and wildlife-rich regions on Earth. The pristine, iceberg-strewn ocean provides a vital habitat for orcas, seals, penguins and whales.

Surrounded by sky-scraping mountains, vast ice shelves, ice tongues and drifting sea ice, the Ross Sea offers some of Antarctica's most dramatic scenery. Over the coming days, your Captain and Discovery Leader will look for the safest and most rewarding opportunities for you to explore the area.

Tag 10 Over the next few days on Ross Island, at the base of Mount Erebus, you'll have the opportunity to walk in the footsteps of legendary explorers Ernest Shackleton and Robert Falcon Scott.

Return on board and warm up with speciality tea or coffee in the Observation Lounge or indulge in an intimate Night Market @ Koko's+ dinner experience with street-food inspired dishes crafted in front of you by the chef.

Scenic Discovery:

Today you may have the opportunity to explore this fascinating landscape on the fleet of Zodiacs, kayaks, stand-up paddleboards~, guided and self-paced hikes. For a different perspective, you may choose to add an optional flight on one of the two on board helicopters^, all activities being subject to weather, ice conditions and permitting requirements.

Antarctica's Ross Sea Region

Weather and ice conditions permitting, we may explore around Beaufort Island, a remote and rugged volcanic outpost rising dramatically from the icy waters of the Ross Sea. Located near the edge of the Ross Ice Shelf, this isolated sanctuary is home to a thriving Adélie penguin colony, as well as skuas and other seabirds.

Tag 11 Its steep cliffs and icy shores create a breathtaking landscape, offering a rare glimpse into Antarctica's untouched wilderness. Being in the vicinity of this scenery is a privilege few people get to experience.

This evening, savour contemporary French fine dining at Lumière+, paired with an exquisite selection of Champagne, or unwind at the Scenic Lounge Bar, where over 100 whiskeys and expertly crafted cocktails await.

Scenic Discovery:

You may have the opportunity to explore this fascinating area by Zodiac, kayak or stand-up paddleboard~, gaining a fresh perspective on the wildlife and ice-sculpted coastline. Alternatively, and subject to conditions and availability, you may opt for an optional helicopter^ flightseeing experience, offering spectacular aerial views of the Antarctic landscape.

Antarctica's Ross Sea Region

Experience the feeling of sailing at the edge of the world as you cruise along the Ross Ice Shelf, the largest floating ice mass on the planet, with ice cliffs soaring up to 50 metres (160 feet) above the sea. This immense frozen barrier has long captured the imagination of explorers and scientists alike, and its sheer scale is one of Antarctica's most unforgettable sights.

Tag 12

As the day unfolds, your Captain and Discovery Leader will seek out the best opportunities for exploration, which may include a Zodiac cruise along the towering ice face, or time on deck watching for Weddell and crabeater seals resting on the ice, and penguins gathered near open water leads. Back on board, warm up in the Observation Lounge with a specialty coffee or tea, sharing stories with fellow guests as Scenic Eclipse II glides past this vast wall of ice.

After a day of immersive exploration, retreat to your suite for personalised butler service and 24-hour in-suite dining or enjoy a soothing treatment# at the expansive 550sqm Senses Spa.

Today you may have the opportunity to venture closer to the Ross Ice Shelf on a Zodiac cruise, gaining a new appreciation for the scale, texture, and colour of the ice towering above you. Conditions permitting, your Discovery Team may also look for landing or cruising options around Ross Island, where colonies of Adélie penguins and hauled-out seals can sometimes be seen along the coast.

Antarctica's Ross Sea Region

Today, if conditions allow, the Captain may navigate into McMurdo Sound, gateway to some of Antarctica's most extraordinary landscapes. Here, towering glaciers, sea ice and volcanic peaks frame one of the world's most remote regions, home to modern research bases and the legendary McMurdo Dry Valleys.

Tag 13

The Dry Valleys are among the driest places on Earth, a stark, otherworldly landscape often compared to Mars. The only way to glimpse this dramatic area is via an optional flight on one of Scenic Eclipse II's helicopters^, subject to weather, ice and operational approvals. Where permitted, your pilot may even attempt a landing on this end-of-the-Earth terrain.

For those staying on board, the day offers enriching experiences, from wildlife spotting in the Observation Lounge to in-depth lectures on the region's pioneering scientific work.

Scenic Discovery:

Experience the breathtaking McMurdo Dry Valleys from above with an optional helicopter^ flight, offering a rare glimpse of this otherworldly, arid landscape, often compared to Mars.

Weather and ice conditions permitting, step into the world of Antarctic exploration today as your Captain navigates toward Ross Island and its historic sites. At Cape Evans stands Scott's Terra Nova Hut, the base for his 1910–1913 expedition to the South Pole, preserved much as it was over a century ago.

Tag 14

Landings at these sites are strictly controlled and never guaranteed; when permitted, they offer one of the most moving experiences in Antarctica, providing a powerful sense of the endurance and ambition of the early explorers.

Back on board join your Discovery Team historians for a fascinating lecture on the rivalry between Scott, Amundsen, and Shackleton, deepening your appreciation for the sheer determination it took to survive in this formidable landscape.

Your expert Discovery Team may take you on enlightening excursions to the historic explorers' huts.

Antarctica's Ross Sea Region

Few sights in Antarctica are as dramatic as Mount Erebus, the southernmost active volcano on Earth, rising above Ross Island. In the theatre, sit down with your expert polar Discovery Team to learn why Sir James Clark Ross and Sir Ernest Shackleton came here and how their legacy lives on in the historic huts. Both huts are still here today and are classified as an Antarctica historical monument.

Throughout the day, keep an eye out for Adélie penguins. Cape Bird is home to one of the Ross Sea's largest colonies, where these charming birds nest along its rugged, rocky shores.

Further south, Cape Royds blends history and wildlife and is home to Shackleton's well-preserved 1908 Nimrod expedition hut.

After a day of remarkable exploration, retreat to the Senses Spa# and unwind in the infrared sauna and steam room, relax on the thermal loungers, or revive under the therapeutic pressure shower.

Conditions permitting, we may approach remote Coulman Island, a dramatic volcanic island rising from the icy Ross Sea and recognised as an Important Bird Area (IBA) for its immense emperor penguin colony. The island is home to one of the largest known emperor penguin breeding sites in the world, where tens of thousands of birds gather on the sea ice to raise their chicks each season.

Tag 18

While landings are rarely possible due to sea ice and weather, simply cruising off Coulman Island is an extraordinary experience. Keep watch from the Observation Deck or your private verandah as your Discovery Team helps you look for lines of emperor penguins on the ice, distant penguin calls, or the blow of whales moving through these rich waters.

This evening, savour contemporary French fine dining at Lumière+, paired with an exquisite selection of Champagne, or enjoy the exquisite flavours of the Sushi & Saké Bar @ Koko's.

Scenic Discovery:

If conditions are favourable, you may explore the surrounding pack ice on a Zodiac cruise, gaining a closer, low-level perspective on the dramatic sea-ice landscapes that Emperor penguins rely on.
